

Project Management when your partner is WHO?

The OIA is now...

In a relationship

What are “Official Relations?”

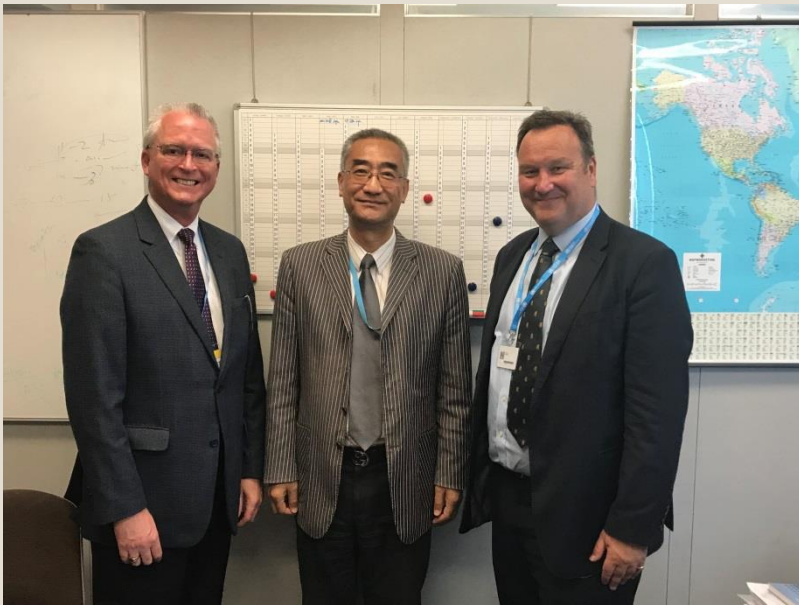

But what does this actually mean?

- ✓ We can participate in sessions of WHO’s governing bodies.
 - This privilege includes the possibility to make a statement at the session.
 - It also includes the possibility to submit the statement in advance of the debate, for the WHO Secretariat to post on a dedicated website.
- ✓ We can apply to host side events during the World Health Assembly.
- We are recognized as the global voice of the osteopathic health care profession.

How did we get here?

Our Stated Objectives

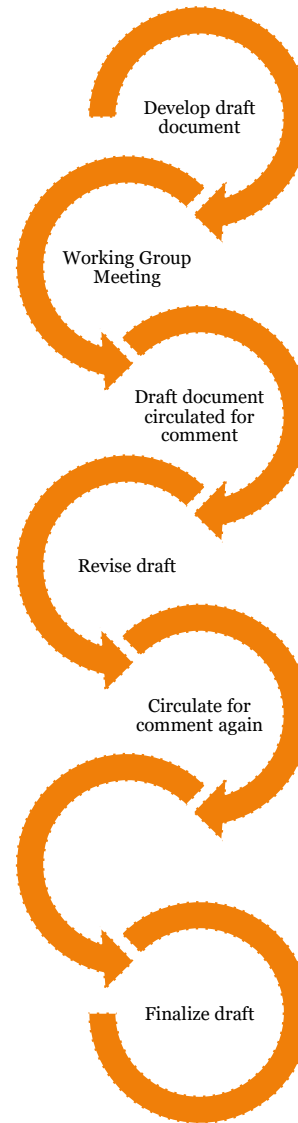

- 1) OIA will contribute to the development of benchmarks on the practice of osteopathy to serve as a reference guide for countries developing regulations of the profession.
- 2) OIA will conduct a five-year update of the Global Survey of the Osteopathic Profession to track professional growth worldwide since the survey's previous iteration in 2013.
- 3) To support WHO in developing WHO terminology in Osteopathy, which will serve as a reference tool for the WHO, osteopathic organizations, and regulatory authorities worldwide. This terminology will be periodically reviewed and updated as necessary.

We're Facebook official now

So I guess you could say things are getting pretty serious

What's Next?

Challenges

